Purpose of Committees

Committees of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police (CACP) help advance the association's mandate by guiding association strategies and initiatives to address strategic priorities and monitored issues in policing identified by the Board of Directors. General and special purpose committees perform an advisory function.¹

Type of Committees

The CACP has three (3) different types of committees:

1. General Standing Committee: This type of committee generally remains in existence for an extended period time because it addresses a strategic priority and/or monitored issue that is expected to require the attention of law enforcement agencies in the short-, medium- and long-term. (i.e., Drug Advisory Committee, Electronic Crime Committee, Victims of Crime Committee, etc.)
2. Special Purpose Committee: This type of committee generally remains in existence for a short period of time to address an immediate priority/issue that is not expected to change, evolve or require the attention of law enforcement agencies in the medium- or long-term. Once the key deliverables are completed, the special purpose committee is generally dissolved. (i.e., Special Purpose Committee on the Cannabis Act Review, the Special Purpose Committee on NG9-1-1 Tri-service Data Sharing, etc.)
3. Community of Practice: This is a cross-functional working group that may be created in situations of multi-committee and/or multi-organization involvement to focus on a specific issue or project. While the community of practice is not considered to be an official CACP committee, a lead will be appointed, and reporting to the CACP Executive Director will be required. The existence of the community of practice may be short- or long-term depending on the focus of the working group. (i.e., National Strategic Communications Group, the Canadian Police Finance Professionals Group, etc.)

All CACP committees will be required to consider the following five (5) themes as they outline their priorities and initiatives:

1. CACP Strategic Priorities/Monitored Issues: All committee initiatives should be aligned with one or more of the CACP's strategic priorities and/or monitored issues. These priorities/issues are generally national in scope, making them relevant to law enforcement agencies at all levels (federal, provincial, regional, municipal, First Nations) and in all regions of the country.
2. Research: Deliverables (i.e., policy statements, research, frameworks, etc.) produced by committees should be evidence-based. To identify any data gaps or research requirements, contact the co-chairs of the Research Advisory Committee.

3. Communications: All key milestones, achievements, and deliverables should be shared with CACP members and perhaps with the general public. To seek assistance in developing a communications plan, including media relations, contact the CACP’s Communications Advisor at communications@cacp.ca.
4. Government Relations: Some committee initiatives involve seeking legislative amendments to achieve desired outcomes. To seek assistance in working with the House of Commons, the Senate, parliamentary committees and/or federal government agencies, contact the CACP’s Executive Director at arotenberg@cacp.ca.
5. Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion: All committees should be representative both in the composition of the working group and in the delivery of its projects and initiatives. Consideration should be given to gender, bilingualism, as well as geographic representation. To seek assistance with issues related to this topic, reach out to the co-chairs of the Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Committee.

Delegation: Forming a Committee

“The Board may, by resolution, establish general and special purpose committees as it deems advisable.”² The process for the creation of a new CACP committee consists of the following:

- Prepare a business case to be submitted to the CACP Executive Director outlining your proposal.
- The CACP Executive Director will review the proposal and may, at his/her discretion, submit the proposal to the CACP Board of Directors for their consideration and approval.

To access a list of existing CACP committees and co-chairs, refer to the “Committees” section of the CACP website at www.cacp.ca.

Terms of Reference: Defining the Purpose of a Committee

Each committee is defined by a written terms of reference which clearly articulates the mandate and strategic priorities/objectives of the working group. The terms of reference of each general or special purpose committee are defined by resolution/motion of the Board of Directors.³

The CACP has produced a template to guide the articulation of the following essential components of the terms of reference:

1. Name: Specify the official name of the committee.
2. Type: Specify if this is a general standing committee or a special purpose committee.
3. Purpose: Define the mandate, focus, goals and objectives of the committee. (Note: Emphasis should be on outcomes, not on the initiatives to achieve the outcomes.)
4. Scope: Clearly describe the type of deliverables expected/requested of the committee.
5. Membership: Describe the composition of the committee as well as the type and number of members.

Nominations and Appointments⁵

All appointments to committees for the ensuing year are made by the incoming CACP President after the annual meeting.

Documents and deliverables (e.g., policy statements, strategies, frameworks, checklists, etc.) produced by CACP committees are the property of the CACP and only become final and official once they have been reviewed and approved by the CACP Board of Directors, the Executive Committee, the President and/or the Executive Director.

Marketing & Communications

Committee members may be called upon to serve as spokespeople on behalf of the committee to discuss the group’s strategic issues or projects/initiatives. These individuals may be approached as subject matter experts to respond to media inquiries, to appear before a parliamentary committee, to help author an article, or to serve as a presenter during CACP or partner conferences/events.

If the committee would like to promote their projects and initiatives with CACP members, other law enforcement agencies, partners, or the general public, please communicate with the Communications Advisor at communications@cacp.ca. This individual can provide assistance with the development of a communications plan that can maximize the use of the CACP website (www.cacp.ca), the Canadian Police Chief Magazine, the weekly CACP News Alert, CACP social media channels and perhaps other communication vehicles that would help reach the intended target audience(s).

Media Relations

The media is considered to be an effective vehicle for communicating information about the CACP and its strategic priorities and for increasing public awareness and education regarding the projects, initiatives, events and positions of the association and its committees. The CACP is committed to developing and maintaining professional working relationships with the media (print, broadcast and electronic) that reach national, regional, and/or local audiences. The CACP encourages committee members to be actively involved in this communications process.

To ensure clear, factual, and consistent communications with the public, and to protect the interests of all CACP members, the following media relations policies are to be respected by all CACP committee co-chairs and members:

- Press Releases: All press releases pertaining to the CACP and the work of its committees are to be approved and issued by the CACP National Office. Please communicate with the Communications Advisor at communications@cacp.ca who will assist you with the development, approval, and distribution processes.
- Media Interviews: Committee co-chairs and members may serve as official CACP spokespeople. Prior to granting any media interview, committee members must inform the CACP National Office by contacting the Communications Advisor at communications@cacp.ca or by telephone at 613.838.8807 or 613.595.1101 in order to:
 - Obtain the Executive Director’s approval of the key messages to be conveyed on behalf of the association
 - Confirm the media inquiry details (e.g., name of the journalist, media outlet, type of interview, etc.) for CACP media tracking purposes

The above-mentioned steps do not apply if a committee member is offering their personal views on a topic or is speaking to the media on behalf of the individual law enforcement agency they work for. In these circumstances, committee members are reminded not to include statements pertaining to the CACP unless they are consistent with an official public statement that has already been released by the association.

- Social Media: The CACP currently has an official Twitter account that is managed by the CACP National Office. If you would like to promote committee projects or initiatives via the association’s social media channels, please communicate with the Communications Advisor at communications@cacp.ca. Committee members are also encouraged to share, like and/or comment on messages issued by the CACP National Office.

Sponsorship Guidelines

Sponsorship opportunities in support of committee initiatives (e.g., research projects, conferences, webinars, strategies, frameworks, etc.) must be referred to the Executive Director at arotenberg@cacp.ca for consideration and follow up. No committee may act alone. All sponsorship opportunities must be in keeping with the CACP Sponsorship Guidelines available on the CACP website (www.cacp.ca), in the “About CACP” section, under “Policies/Guidelines”.

Endorsement Guidelines

Committees may be approached to endorse third-party organizations, projects, initiatives, or upcoming events. Requests for endorsement may range from a letter of support to financial support, to logistical support and/or the use of the CACP logo. All requests for endorsement should be forwarded to the CACP National Office and be in keeping with the CACP Endorsement Policy & Procedure available on the CACP website (www.cacp.ca), in the “Partners” section.
